Gin is made by combining a very pure spirit with juniper and a range of other plant, fruit and herb flavourings.

The flavours can be extracted in different ways: some are made by adding essences directly to the spirit, some by soaking the botanicals in the spirit, and some by steaming the botanicals in a still and collecting the delicately flavoured vapours.

Rum is usually made from molasses, a thick dark sugar syrup created when sugar cane is refined into crystallised sugar. Any style of rum can be made, from light, fresh white rums to deep dark Navy rums.

French speaking Caribbean islands like Guadeloupe, Martinique or Haiti also make "Rhum Agricole" from sugar cane juice, which is very similar to Brazilian Cacha

Bourbon and Rye whiskey can be made anywhere in the USA, but Tennessee whiskey can only be distilled in the state of Tennessee. All Bourbon is aged in heavily charred oak barrels to smooth its character and add flavour and colour, but Tennessee whiskey is also specially filtered through charred Maple wood which absorbs harsh spirit flavours and leaves the spirit
